A: It sounds like you have an expired Flashrom License or you are using an outdated version of the tool. Make sure you download and use the correct Flashrom version. In addition to the website, the USB flash drive is also distributed in the setup package. Your choice of flash drive size (\Device\HarddiskVolume2\boot\BiosBlast\vfuse.bin) is incorrect. In my experience, the default size should be 500 Mb or 1 Gb, not 100 Mb. I've never encountered a situation where the size of the boot sector is limited to 100 Mb. In case you want to use a Windows system, a common approach is to install booting Linux USB media, then use Windows' usual flash drive to restore your BIOS to its previous state. This is safer and more convenient, and is also compatible with legacy BIOS and UEFI firmwares. f678ea9f9e
