* Creating work from scratch: In this mode, you create and edit images the way you would any other program — the difference is that you get to do it within the confines of a professional-grade program. You use precise tools that meet professional standards and use the knowledge you've acquired throughout this book to improve your images. In this mode, you can do so much more than you could in a standard, non-professional program. * Using modules: By using modules, you can get very powerful tools and the controls a professional needs to edit and create images, but in addition to these controls, you have access to the tools and parameters that make Photoshop the industry standard for image editing and retouching. You can then use these tools to create certain tasks in-house, saving time and money. * WYSIWYG editor: When working in the WYSIWYG editor, you have access to all the features of the program as well as many of the available tools. You can use WYSIWYG editing to view and edit an image the way it will appear when printed. You can also work in the custom workspace feature to make changes in the way you want them to appear.

Q: How to save a table from a raw data from Oracle to a txt file? I have a raw data inside a table from Oracle. I was wondering whether we can print the table in a txt file. I have a procedure written in pl/sql. Could anyone please help me out? I have the following (for now) procedure. It's not printing the tables in a txt file. I know the raw data is printing, I have used it inside a select statement in the following procedure. create or replace procedure abc as v_table_name varchar2(256); cursor c_data is select table_name from all_tables where table_name = 'xxx'; BEGIN FOR c_row IN c_data loop dbms_output.put_line(c_row.table_name); cursor c_data1 is select table_name from all_tables where table_name = c_row; BEGIN FOR c_row1 IN c_data1 loop dbms_output.put_line(c_row1.table_name); END loop; END; end loop; end; A: Try the following. Change myTable to the proper table name you are using. Also note that @Per suggested will create an output file named of every table. 1st DBMS_OUTPUT.PUT_LINE('Column1|Column2|Column3|Column4'); Result 1st Column1|Column2|Column3|Column4 2nd DBMS_OUTPUT.PUT_LINE('Table1|Table2|Table3'); Result Table1|Table2|Table3 3rd DBMS_OUTPUT.PUT_LINE('your table name here'); Result your table name here The most highly-anticipated title in the Pokémon franchise is Pokémon GO, the augmented reality game that serves as the latest platform for players to discover, catch and

NEW YORK (Reuters) - An investor sued New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman, claiming he was tricked into investing $400 million in two fraudulent initial coin offerings. New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman speaks during the Keynote Address at the New York Times DealBook Conference in New York City, U.S. on October 19, 2017. REUTERS/Brendan McDermid The lawsuit was filed on Wednesday in the U.S. District Court of the Southern District of New York and names Schneiderman and his successor, Letitia James, as defendants. "As the New York State Attorney General, I saw something," Schneiderman said in a statement. "The fake initial coin offerings (ICOs) that these two defendants claimed were a bonanza for New Yorkers were in fact a scam." The case concerns two fraudulent ICOs, the two known as "Utrust" and "Orchid". The filings by the Office of the New York State Attorney General did not state how much investor money was lost in the alleged scam. "We are voluntarily stopping any future trading activity on either platform," the defendants told investors in a letter dated July 25, just two days after the lawsuits was filed. "These instruments were illegal securities and nothing more," the complaint said. "The investors were each entitled to recover their $400,000 investment plus interest, plus damages for the 'greater loss of their entire $400,000 investment." The defendants had promised investors steady returns on their investments with an expected return rate of between 25 percent and 35 percent. The ICOs were launched in 2018 and advertised themselves as the first U.S.-regulated platforms that enabled users to invest and exchange money in cryptocurrency. They were later criticized as being potentially illegal securities and unregulated, giving investors no recourse to sell back any fraction of their initial investment. The lawsuit alleged that the defendants deceived investors by advertising the ICOs as legal and legally compliant, claiming that the money was tied to a secure blockchain and that the defendants would protect investor funds. "But defendants, in their true character, lured Plaintiffs into their web of lies with deceptive advertising, false representations and sham legal protections," the complaint said. Schneiderman referred to the state's ongoing lawsuit against David Goldberg, a Brooklyn-based attorney who advertised himself
